As they arrive Train to Somewhere the train depots, and while each orphan is being looked over, some like live stock at the county fair, Marianne is overlooked every time. The children vary in ages and Marianne is one of the oldest of the children. The fact that children were sent on trains across the US in hopes of getting adopted was just crazy to me. Mariannethemaincharacterofthebookislookingforhermom,wholeftheratt. No one shows any interest in adopting shy, plain Marianne. Will she find her mother? Marianne is the only child left on the train with Miss Randolph, all of the other 13 children on the train are taken.
